CHAIN O'LAKES STATE PARK

One of the most interesting features at Chain O'Lakes State Park is its shape. It is about a mile wide and four miles long. Within its boundaries are 2,718 acres including 212 surface acres of water and more than seven miles of widely varying shoreline.

The lakes in this chain are known as kettle lakes and were formed by the last glaciers in this area approximately 10,000 years ago. The lakes were actually huge blocks of ice. Rivers of water resulting from melting ice carved the channels which connect eight of the 11 lakes in the park.

Prior to its settlement by pioneers, the area was inhabited by Miami Indians. An Indian village of about 30 bark wigwams was located on the north shore of Bowen Lake. William Bowen was one of the first settlers in this area in the 1830's. In 1840, he constructed a home on the north shore of Bowen Lake.
